

Stoney Plain: The entire area west of Fort Edmonton was called the Stoney Plains due to the Stoney Indians and the fertile plains they liked to camp. In the early 1700s, a small band of Stoney Indians from the Dakotas settled east of the Rocky Mountains, between the Bow and Athabasca rivers.

