

St. Jude's Cathedral in Iqaluit, Nunavut was finished in June 2012 and replaced the original building that was destroyed by fire. What makes this a great architectural design is the fact that it looks like an igloo, a traditional dwelling in the north.

