

The snowy owl has been Quebec's bird since 1987. They nest in the far north but can be seen farther south during the winter months. These big birds can be up to 70 cm long with a wing span of up to 150 cm. The males are all white but the females have some black markings like the owl pictured here.

