

One of the most recognizable of the Indigenous art styles is that of the Haida peoples of the West Coast. In certain indigenous cultures the turtle is the symbol for the continent of North America, or turtle island. This Haida interpretation of the turtle incorporates that legend.

