

A dreamcatcher is a wooden hoop containing a woven web. It might also include sacred items like feathers or beads. They are often hung over a baby's cradle as protection. Dreamcatchers originated in Ojibwe culture as a spider web charm used as protection for infants.

