

Remembrance Day is recognized in Canada to pay tribute to all those who sacrificed their lives during military service. Between the two World Wars, the Boer War, Korea and Afghanistan, Canada has lost 116 000 troops. That's more people lost than the population of St. John's NL.

